Then tis not in the gay and festive hour, Blest spirit, that thou to charm us hast power; Bright scenes may deceive, but trials alone The falsehood or faith of friends can make known. And when thou art fix d in the human heart, Though storms assail it, thou It never depart. Like insects, those frail and beautiful things, Some sport in the sunshine, like them too have wings; They bask in the light of a summer s sky, But at winter s approach they wither and die; And such, in our fortune s blight and decay, Like these gaudy insects, vanish away. O much-injur d goddess, say, shall it be, Shall heartless deceivers counterfeit thee? Shall they vilely profane thy sacred name, Of bright truth...

Reviews

This book is definitely not straightforward to get started on studying but extremely exciting to read. It is really simplistic but shocks in the 50 percent of the ebook. Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding.
