The National Institute for Allergy and Infectious Diseases, the CDC, and its state and local partners should be commended for planning the pre-event smallpox vaccination program and for helping it become operational so quickly. As with any comprehensive program rolled out under such exigent circumstances, there are some questions and concerns. These areas include logistics; provider education and training, including screening for contraindications and treating adverse reactions; and preventing the vaccines inadvertent transmission. There has also been no pediatric testing of the smallpox vaccine--only on adults. Most adults dont want the vaccine for themselves, so much as to protect their children. Children are not small adults, and we need to make sure that our stocks of smallpox vaccine are safe and effective for children--notwithstanding recent positive testing in adults. I am also sympathetic to the concerns of our health care and emergency workers who volunteer to be vaccinated. They will be on the front line in responding to any smallpox attack, and we must ensure that their health and safety is protected, and that persons who suffer serious adverse reactions to the vaccine have appropriate recourse. While some have called for a new federal no fault workers compensation program to cover smallpox-vaccine related injuries, we need to remember that states already have such systems already in place. Vaccinated workers are not the only group of people who could be injured; co-workers, family members, patients, and others could become infected inadvertently. These persons could not file a claim under any state workers compensation program. Im looking forward to hearing our witnesses on this issue,...
